A voluntary registration program called The Accutane Survey was also established. Some patients feel that the requirements to take monthly pregnancy tests and enter information about contraceptive choices constitute an unreasonable intrusion, and feel that's too high a price to pay to gain access to this drug. The typical course of isotretinoin treatment will last 45 months, and is generally considered to be an option when nothing else has worked. Of these cases, the majority of women underwent abortions either spontaneous or elective with a handful of children reported to be born with typical isotretinoin-induced birth defects. Males and FmCBPs must see their doctor every month, but don't have to take the pregnancy or comprehension tests. After the second confirmatory negative pregnancy test, the FCBP must also take an online comprehension test to ensure she understands the requirements of the Program. Accutane is an extremely dangerous teratogen: Birth Defects Research Part A: Problems are common and take days to correct. Clinical and Molecular Teratology. Though prescriber and pharmacy populations have become more familiar with the requirements of the iPLEDGE Program over the years, and the initial issues with the system have subsided, the nature of the restrictive distribution program continues to cause inconvenience for some patients. Results demonstrate that essential components of voluntary pregnancy prevention programs were not consistently followed, which resulted in fetal exposures. From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia. As of March 1, , patients, their doctors and their pharmacists are required by the U. Due to the nature of restricted distribution programs in general, and ETASU REMS programs specifically, stakeholder burden has always been balanced against control and compliance.
